

Internet of Things systems connect smart devices through the internet for data communication. IoT applications include smart homes, healthcare monitoring, and industrial automation. Sensors collect and transmit real-time information.